CORE- Worldviews and the Human Person

Teaching guide 2023-24

BASIC INFORMATION

Brief Description of the Course:

What is the meaning of human existence? What is the origin, essence, and destiny of the human being? These questions are perennial ones, and have received very different replies in the course of history. The present course focuses on answers offered by a small selection of philosophies and religions, ancient and modern, western and eastern, with the object, firstly, of understanding their different ways of looking at reality; secondly, of critically evaluating their way of thought; and thirdly, of comparing them to see interesting similarities and differences.

This course is actually the first half of a more extensive one lasting two semesters, but may be taken as an independent subject in the first semester. It covers the following worldviews: absolute Hedonism (Aristippus) and mitigated Hedonism (Epicurus); Platonism; Hinduism; Thomism; Existentialism (Sartre).

This course belongs to the Core Curriculum of the University of Navarra <http://www.unav.edu/web/core-curriculum/inicio>

COURSE SYLLABUS

Part I: The ultimate questions: What is a human person (anthropos)? What is his/her origin, and what is his/her destiny?

Part II: The question of the meaning of existence. What does the human being seek in life? Does life in fact have a meaning? (The notion of an ultimate end). Everyone wants to be happy; but what does happiness consist in, exactly?

Part III: Critical examination of diverse answers:

Universidad de Navarra

- Absolute hedonism (Aristippus). Brief history of Aristippus and hedonism. Maximizing pleasure and minimizing pain as a formula for happiness.
