INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the CONFLICT ANALYSIS AND RESOLUTION syllabus. Here you will find useful information to navigate through the program and to prepare the lessons.

Conflict in its many different manifestations is ever-present in today's world. It is, therefore, very important that practitioners in the International Relations arena develop a deep knowledge of conflict and its different facets, of its root causes, typology and, very importantly, of the instruments in their hands to handle it in a way that benefits the common interest and minimizes its disruptive effects.

The course seeks to introduce you to the world of conflict and to present some key concepts that may help you understand its dynamics and complexity. It does not intend to make experts in conflict management and resolution. More modestly, it tries to equip the students with some basic tools and, hopefully, to stir their curiosity and interest in this fascinating topic. The course is not an end in itself, but rather a springboard for further study.

The topic is as captivating as the international environment surrounding us. The course will open your eyes to some ideas that will help you to see current or past conflicts under a new light, which is the first step to better understand them and, eventually, to produce workable solutions to them.

The course is articulated in several blocks. Block I (Lessons 1 to 4) will discuss conflict in general, and war in particular, as sociological phenomena that will be dissected to analyze their internal components, together with their causes. Conflicts do not take place in a vacuum, but rather within an environment that influences them. Consequently, this block will tackle the main elements external to conflicts that have an impact on them. Geography, and its ancillary discipline of geopolitics, the international system, the presence of the media, and ethics will be among the factors considered in the block.

Clearly, the focus of this section will be put on the nation-state. Despite the growing importance trans-national, sub-national entities, even isolated empowered individuals have acquired in today's conflicts, the international arena continues today to be dominated by state entities interacting in the global chessboard.

Block II (Lessons 5 to 8), will present some of the possibilities actors in the international system have in their toolbox to prevent, manage, or solve conflicts. The lessons will discuss the elements of national power -diplomatic, informational, military, and economic-, together with different conflict-resolution methods. War will be given a special emphasis in this block as the ultimate way to solve a conflict.

Finally, Block III (Lessons 9 to 13) is more of a practical nature and builds on the concepts learned in the previous lessons, and on the familiarization with the international environment the students will have gained by following current events along the semester. The block analyzes and discusses some of today's most salient international conflicts.

For all the interest the subject has, it will come to naught if you approach it passively. Many interesting issues will be discussed in the lessons that will require your active contribution to enrich the group with your own ideas or views. All contributions are valuable, so do not hesitate to bring them in to the debate. In this effort, try to develop your toolkit and understanding of international conflicts by regularly following current events. Engage!

To have meaningful discussion, you are expected to prepare the lessons ahead. There is no manual to follow the course. Instead, this syllabus offers you some texts related to the topic of the day you are expected to read beforehand. You will also be asked to hone your critical thinking and communication skills -oral and written-, and to participate in the discussions, helping the teacher to shape the lesson. Above all, come to the lessons with an open mind and ready to enjoy the course. Please, do not hesitate to come to us with your questions, concerns, or suggestions to improve the course. Welcome and good luck!

Yours,

Salvador Sánchez Tapia

FORMATIVE ACTIVITIES

During the course, students are expected to:

- Be present. Students are expected to be physically present in the classes. Unannounced and unjustified absences may be interpreted as lack of commitment to the course. Coming to the classroom implies a disposition to fully participate in the class activities and to show a positive attitude towards the faculty and students alike
- Arrival: Students are expected to arrive on time. The faculty reserves the right to deny access to the classroom to late arrivals. If you come late, give the faculty an explanation before the end of the lesson

Universidad de Navarra

- Early release from class: If you need to leave earlier request authorization from the faculty before class starts
- Come prepared to the lesson: Carefully read and understand the assigned texts prior to the session. Complete the tasks assigned for the lesson
- Complete all the course requirements: Failing to complete any of the requirements will result in automatic failure in the subject. The requirements will be adjusted to the standards provided in this syllabus.
- Follow through the media current events relevant to the subject
- Actively participate in the class discussions. Come prepared to raise questions they might have about the material and to express your opinions on the topics discussed in the session. Express them clearly, openly, politely and in a way always respectful to other's views
- Actively participate in team activities.
- Engage in a personal effort to increase their understanding of the topics under discussion through individual study; monitorization of current International Security issues; exercise of constructive critical thinking; and progressive familiarization with key literature
- Observe basic classroom etiquette rules and policy as dictated by UNAV (food, drinks, dress code, etc.). During the online sessions, avoid eat and drink, and present yourself properly.

These aspects will be pondered in the final assessment.

Class activities

As a rule, classes will consist of a combination of lectures by the faculty or a guest lecturer, student's presentations, discussion of current events, debate on the required reading or on another text.

In some cases, the lesson will involve the planning and execution of a team or individual exercise.

Student briefings

Students may be required to deliver a short presentation on a topic assigned by the faculty to broaden knowledge on conflict-related issues, and as training on oral communication skills. Presentations should not be longer than 10 minutes. Briefings may be supported by a presentation. The following will be assessed as part of the "class participation" concept. The following will be assessed:

- Contents
- Oral expression and preparation of the briefing

In Annex B you may find some tips to help you prepare the oral presentation.

Readings

Every lesson includes a selection of readings. There are two categories:

REQUIRED: They must be critically read and understood. They will be used for in-class debate.

RECOMMENDED: Students are encouraged to read them.

All readings (except books) will be posted on ADI under the respective Session folder.

Universidad de Navarra

Current Events

Whenever appropriate and convenient, lessons will usually begin with a short discussion of current events related to International Conflicts. The intention here is to foster interest in security-related events and promote an informed in-class debate to enrich the group.

Teams

Some activities are to be performed by teams. Each student will be included in a team and will be required to actively cooperate in the team's activities.

Academic Integrity

Students must abide by the highest standards of academic integrity. Examples of academic fraud include, among other possibilities:

- Plagiarism: When you use one author's idea without giving him credit for it (through citations), you commit plagiarism. It is a serious academic offense and will not be tolerated. Plagiarized papers will automatically be graded "0".
- Cheating of any kind
- Submitting work of which the student is not the author

Electronic devices policy

NO ELECTRONIC DEVICES are authorized unless indicated by the faculty.

ASSESSMENT

Final Exam (40% and a minimum grade of 5 over 10): Students must successfully complete a final exam of a format to be determined. A MINIMUM GRADE OF 5 in the final exam (May or June) is required to pass the course.

Quizzes (20 %): Short-answer tests (10-15 minutes) or drafting of a one/two-side report in class on topics related to the program. Quizzes will be unannounced. The assessment of the reports will consider the following aspects (for more details, see rubric in Annex C):

- Style and a fair command of written English. The paper must show the student has reviewed and edited the written text to polish the style and make the text readable before submitting it.
- Paper structure and organization. Ideas must be logically arranged in the paper. Introduction, main body with argumentation, and conclusions must be easily recognizable.
- Use of concepts introduced in the course.
- Format. The paper must adjust to the parameters indicated above.
- Student's ability to synthesize key information in the allocated space.
- Student's capacity for critical analysis and to reach relevant conclusions.
- Use of sources. The paper must be based on varied, solid sources, which must be cited accordingly.

Class Participation (10 %): Under this rubric, the faculty will assess aspects like, for example:

- Oral presentations
- Presence and active participation in class discussions
- General attitude towards the course, the class, and the faculty

Universidad de Navarra

- Team tasks and activities

Course Project (30 %): Students, by twos, will be required to develop the Analysis of a Conflict. The faculty will provide the specifics of the project.

DATE OF SUBMISSION: TBD

CRITERIA FOR ORDINARY EXAMS (MAY)

Students must successfully complete a final exam of a format to be determined. A MINIMUM GRADE OF 5 in the final exam (May or June) is required to pass the course.

To successfully complete the course, ALL REQUIREMENTS must be met, regardless of their grading. FAILURE TO SUBMIT ANY ONE OF THE REQUIREMENTS AND TO COMPLETE THE FINAL EXAM WITH, AT LEAST, A GRADE OF 5, WILL RESULT IN FINAL FAILURE IN THE COURSE. This same criterion applies for the JUNE EXAMS.

CRITERIA FOR EXTRAORDINARY EXAMS (JUNE)

To succeed in the course in JUNE, the following criteria must be met:

- Write an exam on the scheduled day
- Get a minimum grade of FIVE (5) in that exam . Exams will be graded from ZERO (lowest) to SIX (highest)
- Demonstrate submission of written requirements
- The faculty will factor overall performance of the student into the final grade in June

THERE WILL BE NO ONLINE EXAMS

ATTENTION HOURS

IN CAMPUS (Appointment needed): MONDAY 14:00-16:00

ONLINE (via Google Meet): WEDNESDAY through FRIDAY as per request

Requests may be forwarded to the email ssanchezt@external.unav.es

BIBLIOGRAPHY AND RESOURCES

On a weekly basis, the Faculty will provide the students the Faculty Notes, Required Readings and Class Presentations necessary to prepare the subject.

The list that follows has only guiding value. STUDENTS ARE NOT REQUIRED to read them. The titles are offered as basic bibliography that will inspire the contents of the course, and that may be useful for the individual development of the students, and to learn more on specific topics.
