History of Animation
Teaching guide 2025-26

PRESENTATION

Brief description:

Our History of Animation course will explore how animation films have developed into a powerful storytelling medium. From the very early days and experiments in animation, the course will teach you about its technological advancements, diverse styles, and significant historical milestones from an international framework. This course includes screenings of influential animated films and provides a comprehensive understanding of animation as an essential complement to the history of cinema. (Having studied History of Cinema is a requirement to enrol in this course)
