COMPETENCIES

Speaking: Level C1 users are capable of keeping up lengthy, casual conversation with a good degree of fluency. In the workplace, they can contribute effectively to meetings, seminars and conference-calls concerning their own area of responsibility or expertise. Students at this level can give a clear presentation on a familiar topic, and in tutorials or seminars, present, and to some extent, justify their opinions.

Writing: At this level, personal letters and some more formal types of correspondence, such as a letter to a newspaper, can be dealt with. In the workplace, users can draft professional correspondence and take reasonably accurate notes in meetings. If studying, they can take useful notes in seminars and lectures, make notes from written sources and write essays which demonstrate an ability to communicate effectively.

Reading: At C1 level, users have the reading competence of an average native speaker. They are capable of understanding most magazine and newspaper articles. In the workplace, they can understand instructions, articles and reports in their own field. If studying, reading related to their own subject area presents few problems.

Listening: Users at this level can cope with everyday life situations. They can enjoy a wide range of social contacts, and understand a great deal of what is broadcast on TV and radio, and in films. In the workplace, they can understand most of what takes place in meetings and seminars within their own area of work. Students at this level can follow much of what is being said at lectures, seminars and tutorials.

Students are reminded that acquiring a C1 level requires much time and effort. According to CEFR (Common European Framework of Reference for language learning), the number of guided learning hours estimated to progress from a B2 to a C1 level is 200.

EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITIES

In the classroom the four skills are analysed and practised but more time is dedicated to Oral Practice as, although Speaking tasks can be and should be worked on individually for homework, the opportunity of working with classmates in pairs and in groups must be exploited. It must be remembered that acquiring and consolidating an Advanced Level of any language requires much time and effort outside of the classroom. Regarding Language, new lexical items and grammar/structure will be introduced and practised both in and outside of the classroom and content already seen at earlier levels will be reviewed and consolidated. Students will note that the supplementary resources for English File C1.1 offer a wealth of practice material in Reading, Listening, Writing and Language. A midterm exam in Reading, Listening and Use of English will be available in ADI, so that students have the opportunity of practising a timed exam in preparation for the end-of -semester one.

The assessment of this first semester will be as follows:

20% of the final mark corresponds to each area: Reading, Listening, Use of English, Writing and Speaking.
