

Marketing and Product Data Analitycs (MIDI) Guía docente 2025-26

PRESENTATION

This module concerns the monitoring of medicines once they are on the market. Various marketing techniques are studied, delivered by professionals from the pharmaceutical sector, aimed at providing a general overview of the marketing strategies used in the pharmaceutical industry.

The objective is to inform students about the current state of the pharmaceutical market, as well as the opportunities and outlooks for advertising and information relating to medicines in both the national and global markets.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

The teaching methodology of the course is based on teamwork, with a briefing prior to the sessions in which each team must prepare a project—each group with a different objective.

There is also a practical session involving a visit to CINFA Laboratories.

Learning activities (1 ECTS x 25 = 25 hours)

• Theoretical in-person classes (14 hours – 0.56 ECTS):

• Each day will feature a session delivered by a specialist in a different area, in the form of a lecture using PowerPoint presentations, video screenings, promotional, materials, etc.

• Practical in-person class (4 hours – 0.16 ECTS):

• A guided tour of the CINFA Laboratories facilities and a talk on relationship marketing.

• Independent study (non-contact hours) (7 hours – 0.28 ECTS):

• Individual student study.
