

INTRODUCTION

This course evaluates the politics of the relationships between and among the different agents and subjects of global power and governance - state actors and non-state actors - as they manage global challenges, and opportunities. It does so from the ethical principle of the common good and its policy applications (human dignity, solidarity, and subsidiarity) further to the social doctrine of the Church and, more generally, the Western humanist tradition. World Politics allows students to give ethical meaning to the political function of each of the different dynamics - conflict, cooperation, competition and coexistence - that push and pull international relations through case studies that cover select global issues. These include war and weapons of mass destruction, terrorism and transnational organised crime, the environment and climate change, health and pandemics, migration and forced displacement, hunger and poverty reduction, and artificial intelligence and transhumanism. The course understands humanity as a global community and further understands that each person in that global community ought to attain "the full development of human personality" (Mater et Magistra, [65]). In this way, the course allows students to evaluate "the sum of those conditions of social life which allow social groups and their individual members relatively thorough and ready access to their own fulfillment" (Gadium et spes, [26]) through the ethical governance of the global.

EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITIES

Class Schedule:

The course runs for 14 weeks in the second semester of the academic year – from Wednesday 8 January 2026 to Friday 24 April 2026 – and comprises two weekly 105 minute discussive in-class lecture sessions.

Workload Distribution:

The course weighs six European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) credits. One ECTS credit corresponds to 25 hours of student work. While there are differences among students, the expectation is that an individual student would dedicate approximately 150 hours of work (contact and non-contact) in support of the 13-week programme. As an approximate break down, the estimation is that 11 hours per week of student work are necessary to successfully complete the course, with the average hours per week for each learning and teaching activity as follows (approximate figures):

Activity	Mode	ECTS	Hours (per week)	Percentage
Class Preparation	Out-of-Class	0.78	19.5 hrs (1.50 p/w)	14%
Discussive Lectures	In-Class	1.82	45.5 hrs (3.50 p/w)	30%
Personal Study	Out-of-Class	1.56	39 hrs (3.00 p/w)	26%
